Recognizing the absence of a God named Yahweh outside of ancient Israel, this study addresses the related questions of Yahweh's origins and the biblical claim that there were Yahweh-worshippers other than the Israelite people. Beginning with the Hebrew Bible, with an exhaustive survey of ancient Near Eastern literature and inscriptions discovered by archaeology, and using anthropology to reconstruct religious practices and beliefs of ancient Edom and Midian, this study proposes an answer. Yahweh-worshiping Midianites of the Early Iron Age brought their deity along with metallurgy into ancient Palestine and the Israelite people.

"In 1949 Francis Bacon found his subject - the human body - and from then on it remained his principal theme. But he did not paint from life. Instead he appropriated images from the mass media that he manipulated into his 'studies'. His paintings bore witness to the shattered psychology of the time and shot him to a prominence that hardly diminished over the next fifty years, and that continues to rise." "This book presents many of the 'working documents' about which Bacon was entirely secretive but which, it emerges, were integral to his creative process. Culled from thousands of pieces of original material found in his studio, including newspapers, magazines, books and photographs, these items have each been exhaustively and minutely researched, providing for the first time comprehensive details of the artist's sources. This base material - folded, torn, clipped and spattered with paint - underwent an alchemical transformation from mundane matter into new images." "Nearly all previously unseen, these visually thrilling documents demonstrate Bacon's tactile, visceral relationship with his sources, and his unerring eye for seeking out visual stimulation in the most unexpected places. His paintings emerged from a dialogue between great art of the past and photographic imagery of the present: and, as a painter of the transient, his work also shared the pulse and flicker of his other significant inspiration, early cinema. His fascination with medium itself - the texture of paint, the quality of newsprint, the techniques of mechanical reproduction of both the still and moving image - throws light on the nature of Bacon's points of contact with the twentieth century."--BOOK JACKET.

Through poems that utilize hypnotic religious imagery, Nava EtShalom carries readers through an emotional seascape; crashing over on waves of worship. Fortunately unpacks ideas about relationships with family, God, and the self. Each poem is pieced together carefully as a house of cards, and ends solid as a stitched spine. What is left in the body after identity has been assumed? Where does one go to reconcile generations of trauma? EtShalom, is unafraid to ask questions with seemingly impossible answers.

A collection of poetry that illustrates life for what it truly is. Portraying imagery in the reader's mind to understand the fragility of living. These poems will take the reader on a journey of pain and suffering, but it will provide the hope that is necessary to prevail over pain. Rebuilding on the tragedies that have overwhelmed hearts and souls. These Fragmented Dreams are fragments of hope and agony. But, to surpass these barriers that are presented before us, you must Find No Enemy. @rayaan_____ via Instagram.

"Since the late 1970s, architect Richard Gluckman has designed buildings and spaces that have a strong relationship to minimalist art. His careful consideration of the basic components of architecture—structure, scale, proportion, material, and light—produces buildings and interiors that heighten the perception of physical space as well as what is contained within that space. Subtle design elements, all drawn from a vocabulary of modernism, characterize the distinctive projects of his firm, Gluckman Mayner Architects." "Framework presents thirty-one buildings and projects from 2000 to the present, including a series of works designed for artists, collectors, and museums: the Gagosian and Mary Boone Galleries in New York; the Mori Arts Center in Tokyo; the Museo Picasso Malaga in Spain; the recently completed Perelman Building at the Philadelphia Museum of Art; and the proposed Contemporary Art Museum of the Presidio in San Francisco. The firm's exploration of the relationship between art and the space it inhabits suffuses other building types. Among the residential projects are a loft in Tribeca; a house in Austin, Texas; and Matchbox House, a weekend residence on the North Fork of Long Island. Also featured are a church for a growing congregation in The Bronx; the renovation and reuse of a warehouse building as an academic center for Syracuse University; and One Kenmare Square, a downtown New York apartment building with an undulating facade." --Book Jacket.
