This work, by the greatest living authority on medieval palaeography, offers the most comprehensive and up-to-date account in any language of the history of Latin script. It also contains a detailed account of the role of the book in cultural history from antiquity to the Renaissance, which outlines the history of book illumination. Designed as a textbook, it contains a full and updated bibliography. Because the volume sets the development of Latin script in its cultural context, it also provides an unrivalled introduction to the nature of medieval Latin culture. It will be used extensively in the teaching of latin palaeography, and is unlikely to be superseded.

Il dialogo tra i contributi del volume si dipana tra educazione e archeologia, e ha sullo sfondo l'Educazione al Patrimonio quale si è venuta ad affermare e delineare in ambito europeo e nazionale a partire dagli anni '80 del secolo scorso. L'educazione alla cultura materiale è il luogo dialettico in cui sviluppare un'idea di comunità considerata l'habitat privilegiato e ancora attuale per una concezione di soggetto che, per quanto trasformato rispetto al soggetto dell'età moderna, resta la bussola per l'orientamento educativo, e vitale, etico, politico. La comunità qui delineata garantisce la condivisione di immaginari collettivi attraverso l'esercizio della responsabilità, nello scenario dell'ecologia sociale integrale, e si declina a partire dalle scelte educative, in spazi di ricerca aperti ad alleanze trasversali, impegnati nello sviluppo di saperi comuni, nella restituzione alla complessità attraverso le dimensioni del tempo, dello spazio, del corpo.

Berg urges readers to access the power within each of us, using the principles of Kabbalah, in order to create the consciousness shift required for lasting positive change.

Qual è la cosa più personale che possediamo, quella che comunica noi stessi al mondo? Si potrebbe rispondere: la propria fotografia. Tuttavia c'è qualcosa che dice di noi più di un'immagine, anche se è un'immagine: la scrittura. Mi vengono in mente queste cose leggendo La bellezza del segno di Francesca Biassetton, elogio della scrittura a mano in un mondo che scrive sempre meno usando la matita e la penna. Marco Belpoliti, "la Repubblica" Quanti anni di pratica in un solo gesto, quante aree cerebrali, quanti sensi coinvolti in una sola attività: così il calligrafo rinnova il miracolo della

'scrittura educata'. Di quest'arte antica, e di un mondo improvvisamente ansioso di riscoprirlo, parla il libro di Francesca Biasetton, dedicato a chiunque senta che c'è qualcosa di sbagliato nel non saper tenere la penna. Taphonomic studies are a major methodological advance, the effects of which have been felt throughout archaeology. Zooarchaeologists and archaeobotanists were the first to realise how vital it was to study the entire process of how food enters the archaeological record, and taphonomy brought to a close the era when the study of animal bones and plant remains from archaeological sites were regarded mainly as environmental indicators. This volume is indicative of recent developments in taphonomic studies: hugely diverse research areas are being explored, many of which would have been totally unforeseeable only a quarter of a century ago.

First published in 2007, this was the first significant study of the incorporation of the Church in southern Italy into the mainstream of Latin Christianity during the eleventh and twelfth centuries. Professor G. A. Loud examines the relationship between Norman rulers, south Italian churchmen and the external influence of the new 'papal monarchy'. He discusses the impact of the creation of the new kingdom of Sicily in 1130; the tensions that arose from the papal schism of that era; and the religious policy and patronage of the new monarchs. He also explores the internal structures of the Church, both secular and monastic, and the extent and process of Latinisation within the Graecophone areas of the mainland and on the island of Sicily, where at the time of the Norman conquest the majority of the population was Muslim. This is a major contribution to the political, religious and cultural history of the Central Middle Ages.
